New reference sources from Oxford.

The Oxford Encyclopedia of Ancient Egypt

Donald B. Redford, editor-in-chief

Synthesizing centuries of scholarship, The Oxford Encyclopedia of Ancient Egypt is the most comprehensive and authoritative reference source of its kind. Covering more than 5,000 years of history, the Encyclopedia not only surveys in detail the archaeological record—it features articles by leading experts on every aspect of Egyptian life—from life in desert towns and the courts of the Pharaohs to art, architecture, religion, literature, language, politics, and extraordinary legacy of a spectacular civilization.

Encyclopedia of the Dead Sea Scrolls

Lawrence H. Schiffman and James C. VanderKam, editors-in-chief

Here in two volumes is the definitive guide to the greatest religious discovery of the century. Featuring 450 original articles by distinguished contributors from many fields of learning, the Encyclopedia brings together what we know about the scrolls discovered in the Judean desert—from their historical background and the many interpretations and analyses of the texts to their significance for Judaism and Christianity.

World Christian Encyclopedia

Second Edition

David B. Barrett,
George T. Kurian, and
Todd M. Johnson, editors

Here is the completely revised and expanded new edition of a classic reference source—the comprehensive survey of contemporary Christianity.

Now in three volumes, the Encyclopedia provides an unparalleled wealth of information about 30,000 denominations, and about the religious life of 251 nations, including new data on Christian life and practice in China, the former Soviet Union, and other areas of the world. Tables, charts, photographs, full-color maps, and resource listings throughout.

FROM REVIEWS OF THE FIRST EDITION:

"An outstanding compilation of data...[for] all academic and public libraries. Highly recommended."

Tim Murray, Editor

"The essays, which average 12 pages in length, are remarkably readable. Most feature extensive bibliographies. Informed readers will find much they will enjoy and recognize related to Egyptian, Mayan, British megalithic, and U.S. southwestern studies and will gain a tremendous amount of new knowledge on antiquarian endeavors of the sixteenth century up through modern scientific techniques. The detailed index offers a variety of access points."

SEAS AT THE MILLENNIUM

AN ENVIRONMENTAL EVALUATION

Edited by:
C. Sheppard
*University of Warwick
Coventry, UK*

All aspects of man's interactions with the seas and their biological and physical systems will be brought into sharp focus, with special attention paid to:

- landfill and its effects
- pollutant discharges over time
- effects of pollutants on biota and food chains
- effects of over-fishing
- consequences of sequestration of pollutants in sediments

Take advantage of pre-publication pricing
valid through May 31, 2000.

Progressing geographically region by region, a complete chapter will be dedicated to each sea and will provide:

- an historical overview of the area concerned in environmental terms
- uses to which the sea or watershed has been put and to which it is put today
- its current environmental status and major problems arising from human use
- informed comment on major trends
- problems and successes
- recommendations for the future

If you think we're just a small company, you should see the size of Kathi's rolodex.

EMERY-PRATT DEALS WITH OVER 70,000 PUBLISHING SOURCES. FORTUNATELY, YOU CAN DEAL WITH JUST ONE.

At Emery-Pratt, Kathi is usually two steps ahead of everyone. She meets with publishers about exciting new books that aren't even available to the public yet. And by the time the public does hear about them, she's already shipping them off to our customers around the country. With so many publishing sources, we are better able to find all the books our library customers want the most. Somehow Kathi always knows what's hot and where to find it. How does she do it? She says it's experience. We think she might just have a sixth sense about it.

The next time you order books, give us a call. We're sure Kathi can get them all for you.

Dedicated to the dissemination of information, Sage Publications provides researchers, professionals, scholars, policymakers, and students with the tools and information they need. In this new century, Sage Publications will continue to set the standard for innovative, interdisciplinary, and international publishing excellence.

Sage Publications is known throughout the world for its pioneering publications in research methods, political science, criminology, interpersonal violence, cultural and gender studies, methodology and evaluation, management and organizational studies, family studies, urban studies, and sociology. Many Sage books and journals were the first publications to define their discipline. Sage continues the tradition of global publishing excellence by expanding its coverage to include additional disciplines in the scientific, technical, and medical fields.

Meeting the needs of today's professionals and keeping pace with current technologies, most Sage journals are available electronically through Swetsnet, EBSCO Online, Rowecom/Faxon's Information Quest, and OCLC.

Keep your collection current and stay on the cutting edge of new developments in the fields of those patrons your library serves by pointing your Web browser to www.sagepublications.com.

AMR is among the most widely used engineering journals in research collections around the world.

For over fifty years, Applied Mechanics Reviews (AMR), has enabled researchers and practicing engineers to manage the flow of technical information. In each issue, AMR features abstracts from 475 international journals, book reviews, retrospectives, and review articles surveying the current literature and analyzing recent trends.

NEW IN 2000

- In July, free access to online bibliographic database of article abstracts

NEW IN 2001

- Newly-designed AMR published six times a year
- Expanded selection of articles and reviews in print
- Available online, bibliographic database updated monthly with latest abstracts

Scope

Applied mechanics foundations and basic methods, dynamics and vibration, automatic control, mechanics of solids, mechanics of fluids, heat transfer, earth science, energy and environment, and bioengineering.
